How to Control the Grasshopper Situation

A special meeting of the Gleichen U.P.A. was called to hear an address by E. H. Strickland, of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory at Lethbridge, upon the grasshopper situation. The best methods for control and the prevention of a still more serious outbreak next year were fully explained. The meeting was well attended, but for the benefit of those farmers who were unable to be present Mr. Strickland has handed to us the following summary of his address: The grasshoppers, or locusts, which are so numerous around Gleichen this year are nothing new to the district, and they have increased to the present enormous numbers on account of a series of seasons which have been favorable to them. They will in time be reduced to their normal negligible numbers, though on account of their present abundance, and to the fact that there are already matings and laying eggs for next year, we must be on the alert to control them. In 1912, which may easily be far more serious than the one that we are at present experiencing, in the mean time the energetic poisoning of the utmost value, since the grasshoppers were in the grain fields will continue to feed right up to harvest time, and as the crop matures they may do more damage by cutting off the ripening heads of grain.

We have little to fear from grasshoppers in any district at any time as on the lookout early in the year, and the young "hoppers" are killed in their breeding places before they spread into the crops. The secret of successful control, however, is to everyone doing their share of work early in the season. One man who eradicates the "hopper" breeding places on his land is a menace to everyone around him. The eggs of the pestiferous grasshopper, which is most destructive around Gleichen, are always laid in hard ground, usually in sand, and nearly all of them are laid along roadsides, fence rows, the edges of grain fields, on grain fields, old stables, trails across prairie and fields, and under or in piles. If these places are watched in May, and treated immediately when numerous small "hoppers" no longer than mosquitoes, are seen, the Gleichen district will be practically free from them. However, however serious the threatened outbreak may be, one should not, as a "hopper" the lesser migratory, is modern and abundant, and this does lay eggs also in hard, weedy stubble land, but one where good crops are now standing. No eggs whatever are laid on summer-fallow, and every piece of land that you are following this year will be absolutely free from "hoppers" next year, unless they move in from the newly hatched "hoppers" had a chance to spread from them. The eggs of the pestiferous grasshopper are laid in small, shallow, rounded, or flattened pits (six or seven inches) the fall or early next spring. This will bury all eggs so deep that the eggs of the "hoppers" that hatch next spring can get to the surface. All ploughing is the safer. Spring ploughing should be preceded by a burn roughage and straw this fall, especially around the breeding places. You cannot destroy the eggs with fire. In the spring, if swarms of young "hoppers" are seen, the natural growth of roughage can be supplemented with straw and be burned at night time, on quiet still days, when the fire of the "hoppers" will have gone into it for protection. Later, if any swarms of the fire or hatched after the ground was burnt they should be poisoned. This fall the grass hoppers will be considerable. In order to loosen up the straw, coal oil is the best remedy used in place of a lime stone solution. This will not affect the remains of the straw, but it will evaporate entirely after a few days and the hoppers, so treated may be eaten before the straw is lifted. We have found that using the lime stone solution and keeping the straw in place is the most satisfactory method of avoiding grasshopper damage.

Although a bare week has passed since the Gleichen Stampede Committee decided to pull off a stampede covering every spectacular effort of Western Cowboy sports, so hard has the committee worked, that every detail of a magnificent program has been completed and all is now in readiness for the entertainment of our Imperial Press visitors.

Word has come from Ottawa that our visitors are looking forward to their visit to Gleichen with eager expectancy and as Gleichen's reputation for stampedes is known throughout the length and breadth of Canada they are looking for something out of the ordinary. Nor will they be disappointed.

The morning program, a copy of which appears elsewhere in this issue, has never been equalled anywhere and double events, track and field, will be pulled off simultaneously, absolutely on schedule time. Like a huge three-ring circus there will be something doing all the time and no waiting between events.

Already a large number of prominent riders have signified their intention of being present, but in case any have been overlooked over twelve hundred posters have been mailed to every place in Central and Southern Alberta so that every cowboy with aspirations to the World's Championship may have an opportunity of making his entry.

The prize money offered is exceedingly handsome and worth while going after and it is expected that the competition for a place in the finals will be intensely spirited. The afternoon program will also be most interesting and contain an equal number of exciting events and additional events with liberal prize money will be added if time permits. That night a big dance will be given and their will be something doing from 6 a.m. until the following morning.

All the most prominent newspapers of Canada are talking about the stampede and giving it a prominent place in their columns. No greater advertising has ever come to Gleichen and district and many thousands of visitors are expected in addition to the Imperial Press delegates.

This stampede will be talked about for many years to come throughout the British Dominion and will be the means of bringing many desirable settlers to the best stock breeding and wheat raising districts in Western Canada.

Gleichen people can co-operate to make this a success. Offer the use of your car to W. L. Maloney and take some of the delegates to see our district. Get out your flags and rosettes. Flags may be obtained at wholesale price and bunting. The C.P.R. is taking a very active interest in our entertainment and Supt. J. M. McArthur of Medicine Hat sent a day here with Road Master R. D. Currie and the committee arranging for the placing of the two special trains. As a result the whole railway yard is being cleared up, new platforms built and other improvements made. A new crossing is being put in over the tracks and notice is given that distribution of freight and teaming to and from the elevators and freight shed on August 19th will be from the west end only. In view of this the town people should see the town is cleaned up.

Gleichen Fair Promises Success August 12th and 13th

Excellent Sports, Aeroplane Trips Entries Fast Filling

All is ready for the opening of Gleichen's Eleventh Annual Exhibition tomorrow and it promises to be a good success as one may judge by the number of entries. Secretary Maloney has already received and hopes to have when his office closes at 6 o'clock tonight. At 10 tomorrow morning exhibits must be all in place as at that time judging will start. The industrial exhibits will also be greater than ever before and the livestock promises to be well filled. The sports committee has arranged program for each day, and has combined with a baseball matches, the Gleichen Band, picture shows, dancing and other special features insures two days brim full of amusement and education.

A WEEKLY CAUSERE OF MATTERS—TREATED IN LIGHTER VEIN

MRS. ASQUITH AND HER DIARY—THE WOMAN WITH THE SERPENT'S TONGUE—LORD TENNYSON AND MAUD—A MOVING EXPERIENCE—IRI (C.A.) TION IN SOUTHERN ALBERTA—A NATIONAL UNDERTAKING.

Mrs. Asquith, wife of the former prime minister of Great Britain, is writing what she calls "Portions of my Intimate Diary," for a popular American magazine, probably for a good consideration of dollars.

Mrs. Asquith has been for years probably the most discussed woman in Great Britain. That she has extraordinary ability no one will deny, but she has been accused of being an intrigante, a political schemer, and of being the possessor of a bitter and poisonous tongue. William Watson, the poet, once wrote a poem that created a furore in London society, called, "The Woman With The Serpent's Tongue," which was said to refer to the wife of the ex-prime minister.

Her articles, which are written in the Metropolitan Magazine, are a curious compound of nobility, matronliness, selfishness and really strong feeling. She is a coiner of epigrams, but a very self-sufficient one, and despite her obvious assumption of smartness, she has a real artistic flair.

She writes of one experience that must have been a milestone in her life. She went, a handsome girl at the tide of life, with all its ideals, its opportunities and its fascinations shining in the sunlight before her, to visit the poet Tennyson in his beautiful English home.

She describes him well, his lion-like head with white hair sweeping back from his high white brow, his handsome beard, commanding stature and mobile expression. In describing the incident she says that the poet's wife was an invalid confined to her room.

Like most of those who possess the poetic imagination, Tennyson was sensitive to youth and beauty, and was attracted to this young girl with her good looks, her intensity and her imperiousness; and when they were sitting together she asked him to read to her. She selected "Maud" and handed him the volume. He commenced that pathos poem of love and youth, passion and anger, and England.

He became absorbed in his own creation—and what a creation. She said Tennyson's reading "had the lilt, the tenderness and the rhythm that makes music in the soul. It was neither singing nor chanting nor speaking, but a subtle mixture of the three. The effect was one of haunting harmonies which left me profoundly moved." His intensity grew as he read verses which described the young lover waiting at the garden gate, and listening to the revels in the house, knowing that his mistress was only waiting the opportunity to go with him. Then carried away by his feelings he placed the young girl on his knee, and with his arm around her waist read:

"There has fallen a splendid tear
From the passion-flower at the gate.
She is coming, my dove, my dear!

She is coming, my life, my fate!
The red rose cries, 'She is near, she is near';
And the white rose weeps, 'She is late';

The larkspur listens, 'I hear, I hear';
And the lily whispers, 'I wait!'
She is coming, my own, my sweet!

Were it ever so airy a tread
My heart would hear her and beat,
Were it earth in an earthly bed!

Had I lain for a century dead;
Would start and tremble under her feet,
And blossom in purple and red!"

Mrs. Asquith says the incident profoundly moved her, and no wonder.

Mrs. Asquith belongs to a remarkable Scotch family. She is the daughter of Sir Charles Tennant, and her two sisters were also brilliant women. One of them married H. M. Stanley, the explorer, and unkind people say that it was her Scotch shrewdness that enabled Margot Tennant to pick Mr. Asquith as a political winner.

The other day I travelled west to Calgary. For some distance west of Medicine Hat the crops appeared to be suffering from want of rain, but as we got nearer Calgary, they apparently had matured plenty, and the fields were blooming. It is a magnificent stretch of country that reaches from our Saskatchewan river at Medicine Hat to Bow River at Calgary. But its obvious destiny

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that when egg albumen is used as a constituent of baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Intelligent buyers will not permit themselves to be deceived by the water glass test.

is irrigation. The soil is rich and fertile, and when water is placed upon it, it will produce almost anything, and its contour makes it very adaptable to agriculture.

The C.P.R. has been a great irrigation enterprise and has only to pass through their farms to see the prosperity enjoyed by those who practice this system of farming. The wealth that would be added to this great territory by the application of a system of irrigation would be simply enormous. It would mean small farms all under cultivation raising livestock and supporting a large contented population, and producing crops of remarkable diversity.

There is plenty of available water. The mountains are close at hand, and each year enough water to irrigate the whole territory is displaced. It seems to me it should be a great national undertaking. An attempt should be made to conserve the water each spring that comes from the glacial snows of the mountains, in large reservoirs, and to lead it upon the land.

Such a proposition, of course, would be an enormous one. But Canada is a rich country, and it is a national undertaking and should be taken in hand by the Dominion Government. It is a wonder to me there has not been more attention paid to this in the past. The prosperity of the region of which I speak, and in fact of the whole of Southern Alberta, would be tremendous, due to the enormous yield there would be from this system of farming.

I understand that the sportsmen of Saskatchewan are to be allowed a chance at the prairie chickens this season. The birds have been increasing, and during last winter were in considerable evidence in the bush country. It is all right to have some shooting in due season, but the birds are by no means plentiful as yet and the game authorities should be very careful in seeing that the regulations are most strictly complied with.

There has been a lot of illegal pothunting going on during the summer. Some of the smaller farmers seem to have no compunction about breaking the law in respect to the game act. In certain of the districts north of Regina, prairie chickens, partridges, and ducks have been shot all summer and no one seems to take the slightest notice. This is a crime. The birds are certainly not fit for food, and the result of this cruel savagery is that many young birds have undoubtedly perished owing to the murder of their natural protectors. Killing game birds out of season is simply wanton destruction of life. The difficulty is that none of the farmers wish to get in bad with their neighbors by informing upon them.

I am told that the Hungarian partridges which were introduced into the foothill region of southern Alberta, are doing extremely well and already it has been considered quite safe to allow a short open season.

They have increased amazingly in the district along the Highwood Creek which lies between High River and the foothills of the Rockies. That district is also famous for the number and quality of the trout which abound in the streams. The country is very picturesque and is ideal for a sportsman's outing. The clear thin air of that altitude is splendid and invigorating, and the snow pinacles of the Rockies create an impression of grandeur and immensity. It is a district of big ranches. The famous Bar U owned by George Lane is situated in that locality, as is also the Bedford ranch which was bought by the Prince of Wales.

Once, about twelve years ago, when I was engaged for my time in selling land, I took a party of American land seekers into the country west of Red Deer along the Calgary and Edmonton lines to search for suitable locations. With me was a well-known Regina citizen whom we shall call Brown, although that is not his real name at all.

It had been raining all day and our way had led through a succession of popular bibles and muskies; and the whole journey was moist, muddy and depressing. At last towards late afternoon the weather began to clear up and just as we emerged upon the shores of a noble lake the sun came out and flashed down upon a splendid scene of wood and hill and glistering water.

I was reminded of Scott's fine description of Loch Katrine in the Lady of the Lake, and turning to my companion recalled rather incorrectly.

"And what a scene were here for princely pomp and lordly power,
O'er a bold hill a noble tower,
On yon soft slope a lady's bower."

On yonder summit far away,
The turrets of a cloister grey."

I do not think that the quotation is more than approximately correct, but it will serve. I wound it up by remarking to my companion "Walter Scott might have had this lovely lake in mind when he wrote those words."

Now Brown was a very good Conservative, and he had not much use for the Hon. Walter Scott, at that time premier of Saskatchewan, and he replied "Well I never did hold much with Walter Scott's politics, but he has surely written some good things."

THE YACHT RACE

The great international struggle for the America Cup, the possession of which is the greatest honor that can come to a yachtman has been run for the first time since the war and honors remain with the American sloop "Resolute," although Sir Thomas Lipton with the Shamrock IV made a splendid attempt to capture the trophy for Great Britain.

The America Cup was originally a trophy given by the Royal Yacht Squadron at Cowes on the 22nd August 1851 for a race open to all yachts with no time allowance. Fifteen vessels started. A schooner of 170 tons, owned by Messrs. Stephens built at New York for the special purpose of competing with British vessels won. During that race the America went inside the Nab, a restriction of course that had not been provided for. Some objections were made to this, but as the America sailed a splendid race in the freshening breeze, the British sportsmen withdrew their objections and the America was declared the winner.

The Cup was not intended to be a Challenge Cup but it was afterwards given to the New York Yacht Club by the owners of the America's Challenge trophy.

In 1887 the only surviving owner of the Cup attached to the trophy a Deed of Gift which sets forth the conditions under which all races must take place. The chief conditions were that the races must be between one yacht built in the country of the challenging club and one yacht built in the country holding the cup, and that the vessel must proceed from the place where she was built under her own sail to the place where the contest was to take place.

This last clause has, of course, been a very serious handicap. During the season of the year in which the yacht races take place in Long Island Sound the air is usually light and the advantage is with the yacht of light construction and lofty sails, and a boat built in England to withstand the difficulties of the trip across the North Atlantic is obviously at a great disadvantage.

British yachtmen made many vigorous attempts to capture for their country this coveted trophy. In 1887 the Scottish yacht Thistle was built on the Clyde and there were great hopes that she might succeed in capturing the Cup. She was easily beaten, however, by the light center board sloop Volunteer. The Thistle was the first vessel built in Great Britain expressly for the match.

Lord Dunraven, one of the best amateur yachtmen of Great Britain, who several first class cutters attempted to carry away the Cup but was not successful.

In 1899, 1901, 1903, Sir Thomas Lipton with three boats, Shamrock I, Shamrock II, and Shamrock III, did everything possible to win the race but was out-sailed.

This year Sir Thomas brought another specially designed boat, Shamrock IV, to New York to engage in the race, but although he put up a very good fight it was again beaten. He has announced his intention of competing again next year.

It must be admitted that the advantage lies with the Americans. They have the opportunity to constantly sail and study the course and are in a position to know where best to take advantage of favoring airs and breezes. Then the constructors of defenders are not hampered by the necessity of providing for a long voyage across the Atlantic.

The race under present conditions is not a fair test for the contestants. Sir Thomas Lipton might be well advised to establish a real international race whereby conditions are equal for all those who engage in it. At present the advantage lies all with the Americans.

A GREAT SCHEME

There was a great irrigation convention at Lethbridge last week and many people interested in irrigation in Canada were present. Opinions were expressed that the time was ripe for a great reclamation undertaking.

This seems to be the general impression in Western Canada at present and steps should be taken to encourage a sentiment in favor of such a project throughout the country.

The region that extends from Swift Current west to the Rocky Mountains and south to the American boundary contains millions of acres of fruitful soil; but the experience of many years has shown that a rainfall to ensure crops each season cannot be counted upon with any degree of certainty. There have, of course, been good years. Indeed, in the best seasons the soil has shown that it can produce better yields of wheat and oats than the most favored portions of the heavy wheat land districts of Saskatchewan.

This means that if water may be placed upon the land, the most remarkable prosperity will ensue. The climate is by no means so rigorous as it is further east and under the impetus of irrigation a diversity of crops may be produced.

To irrigate this region would mean that a great deal of money would have to be expended. It would have to be carried on as a national undertaking. There are rivers of the Rocky Mountains, glaciers, and melting snow, which provide a tremendous quantity of retreating water. A great deal of this element now goes to waste. A great system of reservoirs would have to be constructed and water laid upon the land. There is, at present, of course, a great deal of water in the Bow, the Old Man's River, and the Saskatchewan, but not sufficient to irrigate the great territory designated.

The C.P.R. has already done a very excellent work in this respect around Bassano and Brooks, and Galt Company initiated extensive work in the vicinity of Lethbridge. There are also some irrigation districts where water has been placed on the lands, but the country is so vast that so far irrigation has only succeeded in making a few oases throughout the region.

Colonel J. S. Dennis who, at one time, was Commissioner of Public Works for the old N.W.T., has devoted a goodly portion of his life to this work and, it is to some extent due to him that the C.P.R. did their irrigation development work. C. A. McGrath who was, for a time, fuel controller, when he was in charge of the operations of the Galt company at Lethbridge was also a pioneer in this direction, and at his instigation a good deal of irrigation work was done in the south country.

The benefits of a large and comprehensive scheme of irrigation for the region in question would be tremendous. There is no project more worthy of the attention of the federal authorities and it is to be hoped that an early start will be made in taking up this matter as a great and urgent national undertaking.

Arrive From Australia and New Zealand

From the Vancouver Daily Province:

Australia and New Zealand are represented in Vancouver at the moment by a very distinguished assembly of journalists and newspaper proprietors, who are on their way to attend the Imperial Press conference at Ottawa. Arriving on the Niagara on Saturday night, the vessel was met at the dock by a large gathering of people. Mr. John Neilson, chairman of the reception committee, will give a number of members of the press corps a tour of the city. He was also a member of the delegation of the British Empire of Journalists, who held an informal reception for the delegates. The rooms of all the visitors at the Hotel Vancouver had been decorated with flowers by members of the Institute during the afternoon, and every thing possible was done to show them, despite the lateness of their arrival, that they were heartily welcome to the Dominion.

The visiting delegation includes many brilliant men, some of whom have taken a prominent part in the public life of the great Commonwealths and the Dominion in the south. The Australian is nothing if not devoted to the British connection, and to any and everything which tends to bind the different parts of the empire closer together. At the same time he is not blind to the value of building up a far greater volume of inter-continental trade. The suggestion, which has been discussed by the B.C. Institute of Journalists, was made to several prominent members of the party that an exchange of working newspapers between British Columbia and Australia and New Zealand daily papers should be made for a stated period, possibly of four months each and every one of them were heartily in favor of seeing the present time to work out some concrete scheme to bring about such an exchange. They considered that it would be of the utmost value from an educational as well as from a trade point of view.

Mr. D. G. E. Fairfax, who is accompanied by his wife, is chairman of the Australian section of the delegation. He is one of the biggest of newspaper proprietors in the southern Dominion, and besides being a man of great personal charm, has the reputation of being an able journalist and administrator. He, with several other members of the party, is very much interested in the matter of the supply of newspaper for Australia. That country is almost entirely dependent on outside supplies for paper products, and Mr. Fairfax is looking into this question while on the coast. He was born in Australia and educated at Sydney Grammar School, one of the oldest and finest educational institutions in that country.

One of the most experienced newspaper owners in Australia is Mr. Hugh R. Denison, chairman of the board of directors of the Sydney Sun. He it was who in 1915 suggested to Lord Northcliffe that it would be rendering a great service to the Empire if the great news service of the Times were to be made available to some extent to British newspaper concerns. The upshot was that Mr. Denison was able to arrange that Mr. Keith Murdoch, who also is a member of the present delegation, should be special representative of the Sydney Sun in the Times office in London. While the representative in London is employed by the Sydney paper, he also is a member of the staff of the London Times. Since that time the scheme has been greatly extended to the advantage of the British Empire.

Mr. Denison is one of those who are greatly in favor of some arrangement of "reciprocity" of journalists as between this country and Australia. Some years ago he made experiments, on similar lines, with an Australian paper of standing. One of his own staff was sent to Japan, and a journalist from Japan came to work on the Sydney Sun. The idea was that trained observers might help people in each country to understand the racial and economic difference between the two. The experiment, says Mr. Denison, was highly successful, and he is disposed, if opportunity offers, to try and work out some scheme of interchange between British Columbia and Australia.

Mr. Keith Murdoch, a young man of about 37, has had very interesting experiences during the last year or two. He was privileged to be one of the four journalists present at the actual conclusion of the peace in Versailles. Also he travelled on H.M.S. Renown with the Prince of Wales on his recent tour. For several years he has been the London representative of the Sydney Sun in the office of the London Times.

Hon. Theodore Fink, chairman of the Melbourne Herald, who is accompanied by Mrs. Fink, is attending the second Imperial Press conference, having been a delegate to the gathering in 1926. Though 65 years of age, Mr. Fink is very active and alert. He has had a long and distinguished career in the public service. He was one of the founders of the Australian Commonwealth, having been a member of the league which assisted materially in bringing the federal government into existence. He is a member of the Council of Melbourne University, and is considered an authority on all educational matters.

Mr. David Buchanan, editor of the Sydney Telegraph, had a career of great interest as a journalist in Europe before coming to Australia in 1914. He was attached to the London Times office in Berlin when he was 25 years of age, later becoming their correspondent in St. Petersburg. From Russia he was expelled in 1903 because of the attitude of his paper over the Kishinev massacre. Thereafter he represented the Times in Constantinople, and travelled extensively in South Russia. He was foreign and imperial director of the Times for three years before going to Australia.

Hon. C. E. L. Davis, who is a member of the Legislative Council of Tasmania, is the leading journalist of that island and is proprietor of the Hobart Mercury. For twenty-two years he has been a member of the Tasmanian House and for many years has been grand master of the Masonic Order in that territory.

The New Zealand delegation is headed by Mr. T. W. Lays, proprietor of the Auckland Star, one of the best papers of New Zealand. With most of the other delegates from New Zealand, he is vitally interested in the question of the supply of paper from British Columbia. New Zealand is entirely dependent on outside sources for her paper supplies. Many of the delegates are getting in touch with pulp and paper firms during their stay here, and on their return to the coast in August are planning to visit some of the larger plants on the coast.

It will be quite impossible in future for the delegates to accept changes for a side after noon of each week in any way. Remember you would not think it fair to miss the south coast by five days because another advertiser was late sending in a copy. Would you?

BUY AN IRRIGATED FARM

FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY

BECAUSE:

Irrigation makes the farmer independent of rainfall, and insures good crops, not occasionally, but every year.

Irrigation makes possible the cultivation of alfalfa, the king of fodders, which ensure good returns in dairying and mixed farming.

Irrigation means intensive farming and close settlement, with all the advantages of a densely populated agricultural community.

Irrigation in the Canadian Pacific Railway irrigation block is no longer an experiment, the years that it has been tried having absolutely demonstrated its success wherever intelligently applied.

This is the most liberal offer of irrigated farm land on record. For full particulars apply to

A True Ford Story

One hears of Ford parts being used to repair baby buggies, sawmills, windmills or mill machinery, etc., but it is not often that one hears of Ford parts being used to repair railway locomotives.

When a C.P.R. passenger train broke down recently outside of Chas., B.C., the engineer was right on to his job. He immediately sent to the Ford Service station in Chas., for sufficient good Ford parts to make temporary repairs.

With the loss of only a few minutes spent in making the repairs, the train was again speeding on its way to Kamloops, where it arrived on time. No matter what your trouble, call upon J. H. Walls, the Ford dealer, at Gleichen.

There will be a "before harvest dance" in the hall on Friday, Aug. 18th, put on by the Hall association. The Vulcan band will be engaged and a good time is guaranteed.

The hall is a busy place on Saturday evening and usually the whole yard is filled up with cars. Last Saturday was the U.F.A. meet in the basement. The U.F.W.A. held a meeting in the ladies' cloak room, while the main hall was turned over to the Young Men's Athletic Club for drill night. The Junior U.F.A. club has the distinction of being the largest one of the various U.F.A. clubs in the province. It contains over 40 members now. Last, Frank Harvey deserves credit for the splendid drill he is putting the young people through.

A committee from Gleichen, consisting of M. Bollinger, P. McLean and M. Hill, visited Queenstown on Saturday night and advised the natives to take in the Gleichen Chautauque.

The Alligator, once sole monarch of the creeks and lagoons throughout the charming diversities of prairie, no longer occupies that proud position. Hunters and sportsmen invading the sanctuary of the huge reptile, armed with high powered rifles, have taken such heavy toll, that in order to prevent extermination the creature is now raised on farms. Their sluggish habits rendered them an easy mark for the hunter, and it was inevitable that under such conditions the practically defenceless reptile should succumb. The tale would have been very different, however, had the battle been waged in the manner shown in the current Fort Educational Monthly. Here the hunter, quite unarmed, plunges into the water after his quarry and with bar heads tackling the "gator" in his native element, carrying the battle to an exciting and triumphant finish.

The picture will be shown at the Gleichen Opera House shortly, and if you have a good fight make a point of seeing it.

More and Better Wheat

At no time in the history of Canada has her wheat fields meant so much to the world as now. Canada produces wheat of the finest grades and in such large quantities as to place the Dominion well up among the wheat producing countries of the world. Both Federal and provincial departments of agriculture have done their share in improving wheat varieties and extending the growth of this necessary cereal. As interesting account of the work that has been done is contained in the May number of the Agricultural Gazette, the official organ of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. It is there shown that the most widely grown varieties were developed by Canadian scientists. Preston, Blaney, Huron, Bishop, O.A.C. No. 164, Marquis, Ruby and Preludin have won their valuable factors. The history and characterization of each are given. The seed branch and the department assist the Canadian Seed Growers' Association in extending the growth of pedigreed varieties. The seed branch itself encourages seed crop competitions and seed fairs, tests seeds for farmers and merchants, inspects seeds on sale, and has, through the Canadian Seed Purchasing Commission, ensured supplies of dependable seed wheat during recent years.

Imperial Polarine Available Everywhere

WHEREVER you tour, throughout the length and breadth of Canada, you can secure the grade of Imperial Polarine you now use for lubrication—exactly the same uniform grades are sold by dealers everywhere from Halifax to Vancouver.

Imperial Polarine reduces your greatest expense—depreciation, yet costs less than storage, tire, repairs or gasoline. It reduces friction to a minimum, maintains a piston-tight seal under heaviest engine heat, helps the engine extract the last ounce of power out of gasoline.

Imperial Polarine holds its body, maintains compression—keeps the motor running smoothly and quietly. The Imperial Chart of Recommendations shows the grade recommended for your car. Ask to see it when you stop for oil.

Imperial Polarine is sold by good dealers everywhere in sealed one-gallon and four-gallon cans, half-barrels and barrels, also in 12½-gallon steel kegs, the handy size for the home garage. Buy the larger size to save money.

TAG-DAY

The Quil Vib Club for sometime has been receiving information re the Orphan Home at Olds.

At the Verandah Tea at Miss Gooderham's early in July, enough money was raised to buy a cot for a child in this home. Then the Club decided to make an endeavour to support the child for the year. The amount necessary for this is $200 per annum. To this end the Club made arrangements with the Agricultural Society to hold a tag day at the fair, August 18.

This is a worthy undertaking and a very large one for the few members of the Club. It is hoped they will receive good encouragement when they appear in the fair grounds on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Muir enter detained a large number of their friends at a barn dance, last Friday evening.

Mr. Henry Marshall, missionary, announces there will be worship at the Cluny school house on the evening of August 15 at 7.30. The observance of the Lord's Supper and Bibles will be administered at that service. Rev. Matheson of Gleichen Union Church will conduct this service. All Christian friends are invited to be present. Special music will be provided by the Union Choir of Chancellors. These services will also be conducted on the same day at Chancellors at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Plumbing and Tinsmithing

A youth in New Jersey lost his motor license for driving his car with one hand while he hugged a girl with the other.
We concur with the verdict. While confessing to being a little out of practice, we regard it as a truism that any girl who is worth hugging at all is worth hugging with both arms. The youth was not only guilty of reckless driving, he was also guilty of reckless flirting. Any bird who contends himself with half-measures should not be permitted to drive a machine or hug or anything. Not only his motor license but his hugging license should have been annulled. Two hands when you're learning. Anything worth doing is worth doing well.

Gleichen boys, take a friendly warning. If you are caught at any one armed tricks, don't look for any sympathy. Our J.P.s are all experienced men and will surely soak you hard for neglect of this kind. Shop the car, use both hands, both arms and both feet if necessary, but be sure to use both mouths.
